A possible version:

Dear Mr. Smith,

How are you going? Knowing that you are keen on the Chinese Ancient Poetry, I am writing to invite you to watch the the Chinese Ancient Poetry Competition for high school students of our city.

In order to arouse students' interest in Chinese culture and popularize Chinese poetry, our school will hold the competition in our school concert hall this Friday afternoon, from 2 pm to 5 pm. I believe the competition will provide an opportunity for you to make a better understanding of Chinese traditional culture. And you can feel the enthusiasm for learning Chinese poetry.

Hope it is convenient for you to come. Looking forward to your early reply.

Yours sincerely,

Li Hua

第二节（满分 25 分）

Nearing the doorway, Jenny took a deep breath. When she pushed the door open and entered the house, she found her mother was not in. Tired and sad, she sank down onto the sofa. "Where could my mother be?" she wondered. "Was she still angry with me?" Again, the scene of the quarrel appeared in her mind. She remembered her rudeness to her mother. Realizing that all the scolding from her mother was due to the fact that her mother really cared a lot about her, she felt rather ashamed and lowered her head.

A gentle touch on her hair called her mind back. She raised her head and saw her mother. "Here you come! I've been looking for you." her mother said, tired and relieved. Jenny couldn't help throwing herself into her mother's arms and tears began to roll down her cheeks. "Mum, I'm so sorry for what I did. And thank you for all you have done for me." She expressed her sincere apology and great gratitude. Hearing this, her mother smiled, patting her back gently.
